

ABOUT

Rahbar Homidova is a WASH (Water, Sanitation and Hygiene) expert committed to advancing equitable, sustainable access to safe water, sanitation and hygiene for communities. Her practice connects people-centred social mobilisation with gender-responsive programming, behaviour-change and hygiene promotion, and climate-resilient approaches to the WASH sector.

She partners with communities, institutions and development organisations to design and deliver programmes that are inclusive, evidence-informed and built to last — placing dignity, equity and local ownership at the centre of every intervention.

AREAS OF EXPERTISE

Social Mobilisation

Engaging and empowering communities to take ownership of WASH initiatives through participatory, locally-led approaches.

Hygiene Promotion

Driving sustained behaviour change through hygiene education and promotion that improves health and prevents disease.

Gender Integration

Embedding gender equality and social inclusion across WASH programming, ensuring services respond to the needs of women and girls.

Climate Adaptation in WASH

Building climate resilience into water and sanitation systems so services withstand a changing climate.
